NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Hoover Spends Week in the Capital Conferring and Building a Cabinet.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PRESIDENT-ELECT HOOVER spent the week in Washington conferring with President Coolidge, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and others prominent in the Republican party. Besides discussing German reparations, farm relief, an extra session of congress and other problems, he was presumably selecting at least some of the ten members of his cabinet. But he was firm in his determination not to make public any results of his conferences and cogitations. Washington correspondents were compelled to guess, and they did a lot of guessing.

As to the new cabinet, the guessers were almost unanimous in the belief that Mr. Mellon would retain the treasury portfolio. It was said this was settled even before the election. Soon after his arrival Mr. Hoover had luncheon and a long talk with the financier, probably concerning the European project to liquidate German reparations and the war debts owed the United States. The scaling down of those debts to America was formerly a matter on which Hoover and Mellon were in sharp disagreement. The deep interest Mr. Hoover displays in Latin-America intensifies the belief that his secretary of state will be Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who has done such excellent work in re-establishing amicable relations with Mexico. For the same reason some of the correspondents think Mr. Hoover will select for secretary of commerce Dr. Julius Klein, who, as chief of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, helped greatly the expansion of American trade with Latin America.

That the southern border states will be given representation in the cabinet is taken for granted, and one of the most conspicuous candidates is Mrs. A. T. Hert of Kentucky, a vice chairman of the Republican national committee. She wants the place of secretary of the interior, and last week several Republican congressmen from Kentucky urged Mr. Hoover to give her that place or make her postmaster general. No woman has ever been a member of an American cabinet. The interior department portfolio also was asked for Bascom Slemp of Virginia. William J. Donovan's claims on an appointment are strong and it was thought he might be made either attorney general or, more likely, secretary of war. One of Mr. Hoover's callers was Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa and it was his purpose to urge the President-Elect that the Republican radicals in the senate would make a bitter fight against confirmation of either Mr. Mellon or Mr. Donovan, should officially it was stated Mr. Hoover did not expect to complete his cabinet until just before his inauguration. He was soon to go to Miami Beach for a rest, intending to return to Washington by February 15 to continue that job. This plan will make his projected visits to Cuba, Haiti, Porto Rico and Mexico City either hurried.

Representatives of agricultural states told the President-Elect they would rather have an extra session for the handling of farm relief legislation. They think a more satisfactory bill may be passed under Hoover than under Coolidge, and they would rather have the former appoint the federal farm board. The Pennsylvania delegation in congress wants the extra session also to take up the matter of tariff revision upward.

DEBATE on the ratification of the Kellogg anti-war treaty brought out a lot of oratory in the air senate, the most persistent speakers being those demanding reservations and interpretive statements. Pacifists were given credit for delaying action on the treaty, their idea being that this would help them in defeating the 15-cruiser naval bill. Senator Borah was confident that there were enough votes for the treaty without reservation or interpretation.

In the house right-of-way under special rule was given the bill for reparation appropriation of the house membership on the basis of the 1930 census. The measure, which is sponsored by Chairman Fenn of the census committee, would divide the representatives by the major fraction plan, which would result in the loss of about twenty-three representatives by some states and an equal gain by others, particularly those in the Middle and Far West, where the population has greatly increased since 1910. the last time an apportionment was made on the basis of a population of 91,041,197.

MICHIGAN'S "life for a plat" law and the plight of its latest victim, Mrs. Etta Mae Miller, stirred up a lively clash in the house. During the debate, precipitated by a dry defender of the Michigan code, wets seized the opportunity to compare the alleged past record of Mrs. Miller with the "moral lapses" of Sebastian S. Kresge, millionaire chain store owner and a chief contributor to the Anti-Saloon league.

The same day Senator Harris of Georgia offered an amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill adding $50,000,000 for prohibition enforcement, and he said if this was defeated he would submit a similar rider to every appropriation bill brought to the senate.

In Ottawa, Canada, a conference on liquor smuggling was being held by delegates from the United States and the Dominion, and the former didn't do so well. They tried to persuade the Canadians to refuse papers to vessels seeking to clear for United States ports with liquor cargoes, but the reply of the Canucks was in effect an inquiry why the United States could not arrange her own laws to handle the problem instead of asking aid from another country. They also quoted former American prohibition officials as saying that liquor smuggled from Canada formed only a small portion of the total amount consumed in the country, and implied, in effect, "why all the excitement about this small source?"

ALL records for sustained flight in an aircraft of any description were smashed by the army's big trimotored plane Question Mark over southern California. Manned by Maj. Carl Spatz, Capt. Ira Eaker, Lieuts. H. A. Halverson and K. B. Quesada and Sergt. Roy Hosa, the plane was refueled in the air 33 times and flew for 150 hours, 40 minutes and 15 seconds before trouble with two of its motors forced it to a landing at the starting point on the Los Angeles air field. The practicability of refueling of airplanes while en route was demonstrated, and this was said by the army air officers to be the major purpose of the flight. The members of the crew were supplied with food by the fuel planes and came out of the ordeal in excellent physical condition.

Air mail and passenger service between the United States and the West Indies was inaugurated last week by the Pan American Airways. The operating company for the Aviation Corporation of the Americas. The first motored plane Havana was first on the route, with distinguished passengers, including Miss Amelia Earhart. At Havana its mail was transferred to another plane which took off for Santiago de Cuba en route to Porto Rico. About the same time the service was started from Porto Rico.

Igor Sikorsky, famous Russian aeroplane constructor, said in London of the plan of himself and others to establish a 48-hour air service across the Atlantic ocean, which they worked with the aid of four artificial islands to be anchored in the Atlantic.

QUARRELS between the Croats and the Serbs in the kingdom of Yugo-Slavia have resulted in the addition of another dictatorship to the growing list in Europe. King Alexander, declaring that the parliamentary system had failed to accomplish, abrogated the constitution and dissolved parliament, the land assemblies and municipal councils, and assumed absolute power himself, with Gen. Peter Zivkovic, commander of the royal bodyguards, as his premier. The Croats were at first pleased by the coup, and the Serb politicians were correspondingly depressed. Later, when it appeared that the military dictatorship would be long lived, none of them liked it very well. The king first clamped on a strict censorship; next he issued an entire new set of laws, completely changing the Yugo-Slavian jurisprudence, and then issued a proclamation forbidding all public assemblage in the kingdom. Italy and Great Britain are intensely interested in these developments, and it is said the British government is far from satisfied with Alexander's action.

WHITE RUSSIANS everywhere were in mourning for Grand Duke Nicholas, chief claimant to the throne, who died in Cannes, France. He was a cousin of the late Czar Nicholas II and in the World war made a reputation as a great military commander. His nephew, Grand Duke Cyril, has now become the head of the Russian imperialists.

Russians Clamp Lid on Old-Time Music

Washington, D. C.—The thoroughness with which Soviet Russia is attempting to supplant utterly every part of the old order which existed before the revolution is unlimited according to the reports brought back by travelers who have been investigating the Bolshevik experiment. It is the fixed intent of the Soviet leaders to remake Russia so completely as to leave not a memory of the old days of the czar and the nobility, or, at least, not a pleasant memory. Knowing that intangible as well as tangible things have a direct bearing upon the thoughts and aspirations of a people, the Russian officials have gone so far as to censor music and to encourage a whole new school of music.

Andrew Fletcher of Saltoun, a Scotch philosopher, is the author of the famous observation: "Let me write the songs of a nation and I care not who makes the laws." The Soviet leaders apparently have every confidence in that statement and have effected a complete revolution in music in the last decade, just as they have changed the social order, remade the government, altered all practice concerning property ownership and generally set up a new basis.

With as much care as was devoted to the dissemination of propaganda of a political and economic nature, the Soviet authorities established a special department charged with the revolutionizing of music.

Suitor Chains Girl to Bed Post for 3 Weeks

New York.—For three weeks, forty-year-old William E. Miles, suitor, held his fifteen-year-old bride-to-be in captivity, chaining her ankle to a bedpost as a means of love-ful shock could carry her off and marry her against her elderly admirer could save up for honeymoon expenses. It was revealed.

Mrs. Sophia Sader, landlady of a rooming house, heard groans emanating from the room and told her husband, who called the police to liberate the girl. She, however, told them to mind their own business and get out, asserting her sweetie could make her a prize-ter if he wanted to and in any fashion he chose.

Next day the girl left her trunk with the Saders as security for two weeks' back room rent and with the money Miles might have had to pay out for that item they tripped to the city hall where a marriage ceremony was performed.

Gets $12,500 a Barrel for Bottled Crude Oil

Oklahoma City, Okla.—The market price for the grade of oil produced by Oklahoma City's discovery gusher is around $1.66 a barrel, but one promoter is selling a barrel of it for $12,500.

He gets 25 cents for a drum bottle of the oil attached to a postcard. There are 51,200 drums to a barrel, assuring him a net profit of $12,500 a barrel, he expresses it every drum.

The bottles are bought for souvenirs and for gifts to be sent to other parts of the country.

GREAT CLEMENCEAU LEADS LONELY LIFE

Visitors Are Ghosts of Dead Whom He Loved.

Paris.—Georges Clemenceau, who has wrecked many cabinets but won the country's gratitude in the war, is bitterly conscious of a great loneliness in the seventh of his life.

When his sister died recently, friends gathered at his Paris home and one of them asked:

"How many 'official' visits do you receive? How many ministers, how many marshals call on you?"

The Tiger began, in what all thought an evasive way:

"I sleep little; old men sleep little. Often at two or three o'clock in the morning I awake. I would be bored in bed, awake, so I get up. I come out here, with difficulty, for sometimes my legs go back on me, and here, in the silence, I talk with the dead—"

"It is during those night hours," went on the aged man who so often governed France, "alone with ghosts, dear guests, that I have written my memories of Claude Monet. Ah! There come many of the dead, at night, into this room.

"That is my destiny. I see them go, one after another, those I love, all of them."

Then, facing the one who was so anxious to know why remembered him, the Tiger snapped out:

"I am alone, monsieur, alone."

High Cost of Wives Is Worrying Chinese Men

Shanghai.—Chinese business men whose importance is rated according to the number of wives are protesting against the increased price of helpmates in Soochow Nanking and Shanghai the capital and Nationalist officials spent so much time in Shanghai the price of a good wife had risen alarmingly. Lower class Chinese still can obtain young girls for as low as $100. Shanghai currency.

Road Funds

Appomattox was represented before the State Highway Commission at Charlottesville Tuesday by Clerk Smith, Senator Ferguson, Supt. Schools Burke, Treasurer Burke and Chairman Supervisors Don Moses. The pleas for money to hard-surface the road from Appomattox to Vera was made. It does not appear that the Bent Creek road received any attention.

Both of these roads are important roads and should receive early consideration at the hands of the commission. There were no assurances given the Appomattox delegation that a dollar of the fund of more than a million will be used on the Appomattox roads this year, except possibly a small sum on the Bent Creek to Buckingham road along the Northeastern edge of the county.

The Commission heretofore has been fair in allocating funds for Appomattox roads, but this blow at our road building program is a distinct disappointment to good road enthusiasts here.

Perhaps Appomattox is afraid to antagonize Commissioner Shirly for he might at the next session of the General Assembly present a bill to take all roads in the County out of State system except No. 10. There is as much fear and reason for this assumption as there was in his bill which closed the public railroad crossing at Evergreen in every problem, render him as well fitted as any man in the commonwealth for the office of chief executive." The Newport News Press editorial from which we have quoted concludes:

"Mr. Tucker might be the man to fit this bill. He may be too old. He may not suit Bishop Cannon, but he is today certainly the grand old man of democracy in Virginia and the romance of it all makes it interesting at least to discuss and talk about just a little."

The old friends of Mr. Tucker will welcome with enthusiasm his candidacy should he elect to make the race — Virginia's interests will be safe and the outlook promising for the future with Harry Tucker at the helm. Come in Mr. Tucker, Appomattox is for you.

Virginia Livestock

The total value of livestock on Virginia farms on January 1, 1929, is $78,572,000, compared with $70,609,000 in 1928 and $60,887,000 in 1927, according to the estimates of the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service. The value of all classes of livestock, with the exception of hogs, was higher than for a year ago. The number of cattle and sheep continued to increase, while the number of horses, mules and hogs was smaller than a year ago.

The number of horses has been declining at the rate of about four per cent a year since 1920, and the estimated number on January 1st of 198,000 is the smallest since 1876. The reduction in the number of horses is already affecting prices, which advanced approximately $8.00 a head during the past year The average on January 1st was $78.00, compared with $70.00 in 1928 and $66.00 in 1927.

Throughout the United States horses continued to decrease in number and on January 1st were at the lowest point in over forty years. Reports to the Crop Reporting Board indicate that the number of horses will continue to decline as there is not a sufficient number of young horses to replace the old ones.

The number of cattle in Virginia continued to increase during 1928 as a result of improved prices and the estimated number on January 1st of 765,000 was approximately five per cent greater than a year ago. The increase has been general, the young stock of both beef and milk breeds. The number of steers is reported to be slightly less than last year, largely due to the smaller number of stock cattle shipped into the State last fall. The number of milk cows is estimated to be 382,000, compared with 364,000 last year, or an increase of five per cent. Although a large number of cows were sold and shipped out of the State, the increasing number of young cows more than offset the decline in the total number of cows The value per head of milk cows increased considerably during the year and the average on January 1st is reported to be $70.00, compared with $58.00 last year and $45.00 in 1927.

The number of hogs on Virginia farms declined approximately ten per cent during the past year, as a result of the lower prices. The total number is estimated to be 573,000, compared with 642,000 in 1928 and 658,000 in 1927. The average value per head is reported to be $9.9 against $11.20 and $13.00 in 1927. Hogs declined materially in number in 1928 throughout the United States and the number on farms on January 1, 1929 was estimated at 54,956,000, compared with the revised estimate of 60,420,000 on January 1, 1928, a decrease of nine per cent.

Governor of Virginia

(Petersburg Progress Index)

In the course of a conversation with a newspaper man in Washington recently, Representative Harry St. George Tucker, discussing the approaching campaign for the nomination of a Democratic candidate to the governorship of Virginia, said:

"We must do what is best for the party, irrespective of the individual. I think I know a man, however, who would carry the banner of democracy to success."

He proceeded further and name the man in mind.

The Newport News Press inclines to believe that Mr. Tucker could be elected to succeed Governor Byrd. "Could Mr. Tucker have had himself in mind when he spoke?" asks The Press, adding: "Maybe he did. Or maybe he did not. But "how about it?"

The Press goes on to say that although Mr. Tucker is pretty well advanced in years, he is active as a man fifteen years his junior. Which is literally, true. Few men in public life are younger in spirit and few have fresher outlook upon public affairs. Yet withal Mr. Tucker has the ripe wisdom born of the experience of many years in public life. He is recognized as the leading constitutional authority in congress. Mr. Tucker's high ideals, his vast fund of legal and historical knowledge, his eminently practical method of tackling

Take Stock of Fertility Needs For 1929

R. B. Hudgins, Co Agent

With the rush of field work only a few weeks distant it is time to take inventory of the producing capacity of the various fields and to take stock of their needs for additional plant foods to produce the yield and quality of crop needed to make each field show some profit for the year. Impractical as this may seem at first thought, there is real merit in the plan of laying-off the fields on a piece of paper, noting on each the average yield to be expected, without treatment, and also the yield which may reasonably be expected with good fertility treatment. Then estimate the amounts of manure, fertilizer and lime required to produce these yields and make proper allowance for these materials in financing and budgeting the crop-producing expenditures for the year.

In doing this some interesting questions will come up for consideration. Will crop yields, without treatment, make me any profit? Will the available supply of manure do more good on this field or that field? Shall I apply it heavily on a few acres, or thinly on a larger acreage? How much shall I seed down? How much meadow or pasture sod should be plowed up? What field must be limed and where and when shall it be ordered? Will it pay to use a better fertilizer on certain crops than heretofore? How much can I increase the rate of application of fertilizer and still add to the net return? How much can I safely invest per acre of each crop to make the soil more productive, both with respect to yield and quality.

These are questions that are likely to arise at some time or other during the next two or three months and the forward-looking man who considers them now will be ready to give the best answers. It might be said, too, that the skill with which these questions are answered will have much to do with the profit or loss for each crop at the end of the year.

Joseph O. O'Brien

Joseph O. O'Brien, 49 years of age, died Monday morning in a Lynchburg hospital, where he had been ill for three weeks. Mr. O'Brien was a native of Lynchburg, being a son of the late William A. O'Brien. He is survived by his widow, two sons, Otway and Randolph, of Lynchburg; four daughters, Mrs. Ellis Brame, of Chase City; Misses Elizabeth, Virginia and Adeline O'Brien, of Appomattox; three brothers, William O'Brien Jr., of Kyle, W. Va.; and E. H. and Gray L. O'Brien of Lynchburg and three sisters, Mrs. C. B. Johnson, Lynchburg; Mrs. C. P. Hardaway, Bluefield, W. Va., and Miss Marion O'Brien, of Takoma, Md.

Deceased was a steward in Appomattox Memorial church and lay evangelist, and at the time of his death had charge of the fresh meat department of H. M. Burge Co., here. He was also the best judge of live stock in the county and was frequently called upon by our farmers in judging and administering to ill stock He was popular and had many warm friends who sorrow with his family in his death.

Funeral services were conducted from the Methodist church here by Rev. George Reamy, his pastor, assisted by Revs. Redding, Clark and Caudil before a large crowd of friends of the family and burrial was made in the Caldwell cemetery at East Ridge Farm.

Incomparable Quality

Incomparable quality! A strong statement but also a positive fact. Here is the Tire built to give the Farmer the same satisfactory service as the City user. A TIRE so well built that no additional expense could improve it or add a single mile to its performance.

Right today there's probably a tire on your car or truck that's ready to quit the road. Why not replace it with a VIRGINIA MADE PRODUCT. Virginia products are as good as can be bought. Once a Bedford user; always a BEDFORD BOOSTER.
